COURSE DESCRIPTION: This course a mix of classroom instruction, range sessions and activity based learning. The class begins in the classroom with contextual and legal blocks of instruction to set a base-line for field use. Training is conducted in a progressive format- from essential skills to employment protocols. Each block of instruction builds on the previous.

Acknowledging that shotgun usage is currently an uncommon practice for many agencies, the initial portion of the curriculum focuses on core skills for safe and pragmatic use of this platform including basic weapon handling tasks.

Additional topics includes a session to develop standards for practical use; testing the kinetic ammunition supplied by the agency to determine accuracy parameters and operational limits within realistic conditions. Two officer tactics conclude the course with procedures for post shooting management including duty to render aid and officer safety. At the conclusion of each major range session, a set of confirmation drills are conducted to assess competency on the subject matter.

The tactics, technique and procedure shown in this course apply to both patrol level and tactical team operations.
