Danielle Butts has been the Executive Director/CEO/Founder of AOCAC since January 2012. Danielle gained her children's advocacy experience managing program operations for Jane Adams Hull House Children's Advocacy Center for more than a decade. With the collapse of Hull House, she founded All Our Children's Advocacy Center through incorporation, obtaining funding, establishing infrastructure and governance, initiating Forensic Interviewing, developing a Board of Directors and developing an Advisory Board. Danielle speaks at a variety of related organizations, such as NEMRT, law enforcement, local and regional high schools, and universities. She has established strategic alliances and partnerships with a variety of agencies, including law enforcement, child welfare and legal. She was trained at DePaul University with a BA and holds an MSW from the University of Illinois. Danielle is passionate about collaborating with law enforcement, DCFS, and Cook County agencies to streamline the investigative process and offering children and families a warm and caring environment through the investigative process.
